Ryan Perlongo

Ryan Perlongo is the Senior Advisor for the New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) Law Enforcement Strategic Assistance Unit and Gun Involved Violence Elimination Initiative (GIVE). These units provide hands-on strategic counsel to New York State law enforcement agencies focusing on evidence-based policing practices, community trust building, and reform and reinvention collaboratives. Ryan's role includes the design of portfolio-specific learning opportunities tailored to local legislation and priorities, fostering peer learning partnerships across agencies, coordinating research projects, developing white papers, and building the technical capacity of local stakeholders to implement, measure, and sustain strategies.

In addition to his work with the Strategic Assistance Unit, Ryan continues to serve as Master Police Instructor for the DCJS, focusing on evidence-based crime prevention strategies. Ryan's 15-year career in sworn service was rooted in developing and administering comprehensive officer training and professional development programs at the City and State Universities of New York, where he served in multiple roles retiring as Assistant Chief of Police.

Ryan holds a Master of Science in Law Enforcement and Public Safety Leadership from the University of San Diego, is a doctoral candidate at New York University's Steinhardt School of Education and Human Development, and was recently selected as a recipient of the NIJ Law Enforcement Advancing Data and Science (LEADS) merit-based scholarship. NIJ's LEADS scholarship program helps law enforcement integrate research into their day-to-day work and provides members direct insight from forward-thinking practitioners who value research and the role it plays in practice.