

Thomas Nash

Thomas Nash is a High-Tech Crime Specialist with the National White Collar Crime Center (NW3C). NW3C provides high-quality, industry leading training and technical assistance for the prevention, investigation, and prosecution of economic and high-tech crime. In addition, Thomas Nash is currently an adjunct instructor at Champlain College in Burlington Vermont instructing and developing course curriculum for Criminal Investigation courses.

Prior to his current position, Thomas served as a full-time certified police officer with the Burlington (Vermont) Police Department holding the rank of Sergeant and assigned to the Chittenden Unit for Special Investigations (SVU) as Director. Additionally, he served as an investigator with the US Department of Justice Internet Crimes against Children Task Force (ICAC) and as a computer forensic examiner with the US Secret Service Electronic Crimes Task Force (USSS-ECTF).

Other assignments during his 21-year tenure at the Burlington Police Department (BPD) included the Uniform Services Bureau, Detective Services Bureau, and the BPD Administrative Bureau. Thomas was also on staff at the Vermont Police Academy as an instructor of Criminal Law, Criminal Investigations, and the Investigation of Computer Crimes.

Prior to his work at BPD, he worked as a Special Education teacher in Burlington, VT and in Boston, MA. Thomas Nash received a master's degree in Education from Boston University and an undergraduate degree in Political Science with a minor in Criminal Justice from Villanova University.

Mr. Nash can be contacted at: tnash@nw3c.org