

Carl Risheim is the (IADLEST) Program Manager for the Colombian National Police Standards Center in Bogota, Colombia.

Before joining the IADLEST team in October 2022, he served as Program Manager and Law Enforcement Assistance Attache for the US Department of Justice's International Criminal Investigative Training Assistance Program (ICITAP). While working with DOJ for over 26 years, he was responsible for designing and implementing justice sector reform, police, investigative, and forensic development programs in Panama, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Dominican Republic, Mexico, Nepal, and North Macedonia.

In 1988, he started his federal government career as a criminal investigator and security specialist for the US Treasury Department. After 15 years of service, he left government service from 2002–2010, where he enjoyed a successful career managing complex transnational counterfeit and internet investigations for Phillip Morris International, Microsoft Corporation, and Hewlett Packard Company in Latin America. He returned to the Department of Justice in 2010 to open the ICITAP office in Mexico City.

Carl is a native Spanish speaker, was born in Bogota, Colombia, and grew up in a multicultural environment. He has received numerous awards from the Department of Justice and foreign law enforcement agencies throughout Latin America, Asia, and Europe in recognition of his contributions to the development of law enforcement agencies in those regions.
